

PRIVACY POLICY

The heathrobinsonmuseum.org website is operated by The West House and Heath Robinson Museum Trust, a charity registered in England and Wales, with charity registration number 1086567.

We take all matters of information and data security and confidentiality very seriously. This Privacy Policy explains our approach to protecting any information provided by or collected from visitors to our website. It also describes the purposes of data collection across the Trust and museum activities and lists the third party services and software applications we use to support the Trust and museum operations. Some of these third party services are accessed or linked to from our website.

Our Privacy Policy relates to information that you may provide to us via the website or that we obtain from you when you visit our website. If you visit a website operated by a third party through a link included on this website, your information may be used differently by the operator of the linked website.

This Policy has been updated specifically to incorporate the requirements of the GDPR legislation and to comply with the requirements of consent and legitimate interests in any information we request, gather, store or use. We will never collect sensitive information about you without your explicit consent.

This policy will continue to be regularly reviewed and updated where necessary to take account of legislative or regulatory change or where we change any aspect of how we operate.

Throughout this policy document we provide contact email addresses and we include our postal address at the end, for any queries you may have.

Throughout this Policy, any brands or third party product and service names are acknowledged where appropriate as the registered trademarks of their respective corporate owners.

INFORMATION WE COLLECT FROM OUR WEB SITE

We collect information about visitors to our site in three main ways:

I. Requests you make to contact us

When you contact us, we ask for your name, email address and any message you want to provide. Depending on the nature of your query, these details are forwarded to our Museum Manager, Learning Officer, Marketing/PR team or Trustees as appropriate. The recipient will then respond as you have requested. We store those contact details in our local PCs only for as long as is necessary to process your queries.

None of those details are stored by the website or our website provider.

2. Requests to subscribe to our mailing list

In several places on our website we provide you with an option to subscribe to the Museum mailing list. This will link you to an opt-in form where you provide your name and email address in order to be added to the mailing list. This confirms that you wish to receive updates about news, events and any other relevant information via e-mail.

Our mailing list is maintained securely in the industry standard system mailchimp, whose own privacy policy can be viewed at <https://mailchimp.com/legal/privacy/>

On any of our mailings you always have the option to amend your subscription preferences or to unsubscribe completely.

You can also contact us to ask to be removed from the mailing list. To do this, mail pressoffice@heathrobinsonmuseum.org and we will remove your name and confirm back to you accordingly.

3. Visitor statistics

When someone visits our website we use a third party service, Google Analytics, to collect standard internet log information and details of visitor behaviour patterns. We do this to find out how many visitors come to our site and how they navigate around it, to help us improve the information and display options. This information does not identify you personally. We use it to help us understand which pages are visited most frequently and to identify then how we might improve our site and the overall user experience for future visitors.

Google's own privacy policies can be viewed here <https://policies.google.com/privacy>
